

Enhancing Quality of Life in Johnson County: A Celebration of Community Partners

Each year, the Johnson County Board of Supervisors allocates funding to more than three dozen community partners, including social services organizations, libraries and economic development groups.

Through various grant and fund allocation processes, for Fiscal Year 2014 the Board invested more than $2.3 million in community partners. An additional total of $22,000 of emergency or innovative flexible funding was awarded to five organizations in Fiscal Year 2013.

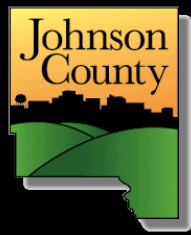

Here is a snapshot of some of those community partners and the impact they are making on the quality of life in Johnson County.

Enhancing Quality of Life in Johnson County: A Celebration of Community Partners

On Monday, July 1, 2013, the Johnson County Board of Supervisors hosted a recognition event for its community partners at the Johnson County Health and Human Services Building, 855 South Dubuque Street, Iowa City.

COME TO THE TABLE
local food summit

register at www.2013cometothetablesummit.eventbrite.com

Come to the Table is a special program of the Field to Family Regional Food Coalition with the goal of bringing together farmers with bakers, butchers, grocers, chefs, schools, hospitals, child daycares, and many more buyers of local food. The goal is to foster the relationships between farmers and buyers in the Iowa Corridor Region.

Despite its strong agricultural market, Iowa imports most of its food from other states and countries. Event organizers hope to increase the amount of local food bought and sold in Iowa by bringing together state & national food buyers with local food producers. "Come to the Table" aims to expand the local food market starting with a handbook.

Morning Keynote and Panel
